

Children of the DJIBOUTI

Have you heard of this country before? It has an interesting name. It is located right on the edge of the Red Sea in Eastern Africa, not too far from Somalia. This country has been plagued by drought and doesn't have many natural resources. Because they find it difficult to feed their people much of this country is undernourished Think about all the fast food places you eat at in a week or just pass on the way to and from school every day. As you consider all the food we have available to us, at any time, pray for countries like Diibouti that have little food to offer their people. As Christians, we need to share the love of Jesus by giving our money to help countries that are less fortunate than ours. Consider iving a tithe or offering to your Sunday School class this week to help a missionary in a foreign country.
